TEACHING METHODS

Lectures presentation of theoretical material by the lecturer according to the curriculum and the distribution of hours between topics. Various interactive forms of audience activation are used. The lecturer has his/her compendium, which reflects the main content of the topic, students write new information in their notes.

Practical classes are conducted in the form of performing practical tasks and exercises. For practical classes, students study lecture material, prepare performances using educational and scientific literature, perform exercises and tasks. The lecturer evaluates the activity of students during the lesson on the accepted score scale. During the lesson, the level of knowledge of students is necessarily evaluated on each topic using test tasks, exercises, and written independent work on knowledge of the main concepts on the topic.

An individual task is a type of independent work outside the classroom, when a student, using lecture material and additional sources of knowledge, develops a personal topic.

Preparation of the presentation is a type of independent work performed by a student (or 2-3 students) outside the auditorium hours. The student freely chooses topics from the number of topics offered by plans for practical classes or agrees with the teacher on initiative topics. The next step of the student is to search bibliographically using library funds or Internet resources. It also creates a presentation plan or asks questions on which to get a reasoned answer. Having mastered the sources on the topic, the student reveals the content of the questions and presents the work done at the practical lesson. The volume of the presentation is 16-25 slides, the text of the report is 4-6 standard pages typed on the computer. The main content of the presentation is reported in free form during the lesson, and the student receives an assessment from the teacher.

Distance learning is a form that can be introduced as a result of the introduction of quarantine restrictions related in particular to the spread of COVID-19. It involves training using computer and telecommunication technologies (Office-365), which provide interactive interaction between the teacher and the student at different stages of studying the discipline and self-contained work with educational and methodological materials, performing practical tasks, test control, etc.

Innovative methods - modern methods of learning, which include:

- structural and logical technologies: step-by-step organization of the learning system, which contributes to the logical sequence of setting and solving didactic problems based on the selection of their content, forms, methods, and means of learning at each stage of the process, taking into account the step-by-step diagnostics of results;

- integration technologies: didactic systems that provide integration of inter-representative knowledge and skills, various activities at the level of integrated courses (including electronic ones);

- professional-business gaming technologies: didactic systems for the use of various "games," during which the ability to solve problems based on compromise (business and role-playing games, simulation exercises, individual training, computer programs, etc.);

- training technologies: a system of activities for the development of certain algorithms for solving typical practical tasks using a computer (psychological training of intellectual development, communication, solving managerial problems);

- information and computer technologies are implemented in didactic systems of computer learning based on the dialogue "man-machine" with the help of various training programs (training, controlling, information, etc.).

CONTROL METHODS

1. Final (semester) control is carried out in the form of an exam or by accumulating points under the current control of meaningful modules.

Exam is a written or oral answer to the questions contained in the exam ticket. Questions of exam tickets are brought to students in advance. Examination tickets are prepared by the lecturer, they are approved at the meeting of the department and signed by the head of the department. The examiner is appointed by the head of the department. It should assess the quality of the student's response based on the accepted scale of academic grades.

Control questions from course to exam.

52. Adjectives and pronouns in scientific and business texts.
53. Features of the use of verbal forms in the speech of a specialist. Ways of expressing the order.

2. Flow control is carried out according to the results of students' "work in practical classes, by the method of evaluation of control work, evaluation of tests, independent robots, individual tasks, presentations.

Control at practical lessons is evaluation of students' performances, answers to questions posed by the teacher, evaluation of test tasks, assessments during independent robots, evaluation of the contribution of individual students to group work in the preparation of a team project, activity in a business game.

Control work is a type of current control of students "knowledge, which aims to identify the level of knowledge of students obtained from the passed material. The date of the control work is given to the students and assigned upon completion of the study of the meaningful module. Questions and test tasks are prepared by the teacher conducting practical classes, they are consistent with lectures and topics of seminar classes. The control work is carried out in writing in the presence of the teacher, evaluated on the accepted scale and the assessment can be used by the teacher to calculate the cumulative score based on the results of the study of the discipline.

Individual tasks are evaluated by the teacher or by the results of the report at a practical lesson or for separate work.

Criteria and system for assessing students' knowledge and skills.

According to the guidelines of ECTS, an assessment system should be understood as a set of methods (written, oral and practical tests, examinations, projects, etc.) used in assessing the achievement of the expected learning outcomes by the students.

Successful assessment of learning outcomes is a precondition for awarding credits to a person under study. Therefore, statements of learning outcomes of programme components should always be accompanied by clear and appropriate assessment criteria for awarding credits. This makes it possible to state that the learner has acquired the necessary knowledge, understanding, competences.

Assessment criteria are descriptions of what a person who is learning is expected to do in order to demonstrate the achievement of a learning outcome.

The main conceptual statements of the student's knowledge and skills assessment system are:

1. Improving the quality of training and competitiveness of specialists by stimulating independent and systematic work of students during an academic semester, establishment of constant feedback from teachers to each student and timely correction of his/her learning activities.

2. Improving the objectivity of students' knowledge assessment takes place through monitoring during a semester with the use of a 100-point scale (Table 2). Grades are necessarily translated into the national scale (with the state semester grades "excellent", "good", "satisfactory" or "unsatisfactory") and the ECTS scale (A, B, C, D, E, FX, F).

Table 2 - Knowledge and skills assessment scale: national and ECTS rating
